.....January 16, 1988. TONDAY ... ROSBY S. NOYES. Editor. The Evening Star has a regular, permanent bonn fide daily circulation more than treble that of any other daily paper published in Washington, and much greater than that et all the other daily papers here added together. It will not detract in the least from the value of the interesting article in Saturday's Standescriptive of Col. Taylor's visit to the White House to raise a question as to the historical correctness of his assumption of the title of the "father of the greenback." That honor has for many years been ecorded by eastern financiers to the Hon. Eibridge Gerry Spaulding, of Buffalo, who was a representative in Congress at two different periods in his public career, and a member of the committee on ways and means during the early rears of the war. As he was both a lawyer and a anker he was made chairman of the subcommittee who were entrusted with the duty of devising a scheme for supplying the Government with a circulating medium in which to meet its current expenses. To the deliberations of this subcommit e are to be credited the evolution of the legaltender act and the national currency bank act practically in the shape in which they passed Conress, and it was Mr. Spaulding who actually trafted these measures. He was also the author of most of the pills for raising loans which originated with the ways and means committee during those troubled times. As an evidence of the conidence which President Lincoln felt in him it is well known that Mr. Spaulding would have been offered the Secretaryship of the Treasury when Mr. Chase was appointed chief justice had not the Cabinet already contained a New Yorker in its hief seat in the person of Mr. Seward. However, it is not for us to rob Col. Taylor of whatever credit may be really due him in the emises. It is possible that his arguments may ave had much to do with confirming Mr. Lincoln's purpose to sign the legal-tender bill. And, in any event, the origin of a popular forced loan levied by the General Government dates back as far as the Continental Congress, which resorted to this means to raise funds for paying the soldiers of the Revolution. But the continental currency was ruthless ly repudiated, and entailed heavy losses upon many citizens ill able to bear them. Let us, therefore, if we must accord special honor to anyone is connection with our paper promises to pay, choose rather the statesman whose wise guidance of the nation's affairs enabled us to keep our promises to the letter, than those who merely provided us with the letter, than those who merely provided us with a convenient means of making them.

It is significant that at the meeting of Reading employes yesterday only half as many persons were present as at the meeting a fortnight ago, and those delegates who did come together represented only the railroad element, and not the miners. It is to be hoped that the two classes will continue separate and distinct from each other. They have nothing in common. The fight of the miners is for better par, and, if their statement of their case is correct, they have a good cause of complaint against the company. The strike of the railroaders, however, according to the most trustworthy accounts that can be gath.

In its struggle against the boycott system the company will have the sympathy of all good citizens. Injury is efore liable to come to the miners, without heir necessarily deserving it, by their too close ennection with the railroad men in the present troversy; and it is evident that they realize this and have resolved to carry on their strike inendently, in spite of the earnest efforts of the ratiroad men to induce them to pool their issues. Experienced observers prophesy that there will be an end to the troubles, and that the Reading collieries will be running again on full time within a week. Let us hope that this is the explanation of the respectful forbearance and outward good nature with which the miners have thus far reated the company and the company the miner notwithstanding their rather strained busines

It is cheering to see that the House post-office committee is taking steps to revise the stupid and universally obnoxious postal law, forbidding any printing except the bare name and address of the ler, on the outside of a package of merchantiee passing through the mails. The idea is absurd that the Government is defrauded of any right when "John Smith & Co., 9876 X street, Washington, D. C.," add to the imprint on their washington, D. C.," add to the imprint on their boundaries wrappers for purposes of further 1318-6t 1241 and 1243 11th st. s.e. dentification by their, customers, the phrase "Dealers in hardware and cutlery;" or when, in "Dealers in nardware and cutiery;" or when, in order to avoid confusion with some other John smith & Co., they append to the title of their firm, in parenthesis, "Late smith & Robinson." No of-ficial rule enforced in recent years has excited so idespread wrath, with the possible exception of Judge Key's order forbidding postmasters to try to find a letter's destination when its superscripion was not explicit. It cuts into the heart of ery community's business, as the accidental DON'T MISS THE GREAT FIRE SALE failure of a clerk to draw his pen through one of the superfluous phrases in the imprint on an envelope or wrapper is liable to consign his empulously the provisions of its charter. The company is to be charged with fostering the present ARTHUR BURT & Co. strike for the purpose of raising the price of coal, and with employing inefficient hands to run its trains, instead of the best who can be got, as required by law.

Both of these charges will be hard to prove; but that has nothing to do with the right of the Knights to utter them. Indeed, whoever does make an honest endeavor to enforce among corporations a proper regard for their lawful obligatong is a public benefactor. If the Knights succeed in doing it through the courts, instead of resorting to less peaceful and regular methods. they will establish a valuable precedent. That is just the sort of thing the courts were made for.

The exposure Saturday of the discreditable Sypher letters in the Thobe-Carlisle contest, in which Sypher undertook to bring his Louisiana earpet-bag "political and diplomatic management" to bear in behalf of his client, served to end the case for the presecution under a cloud of dis-
